International Academic Mobility – the Key to Survival

23rd Management of Higher Education Institutions Seminar (MHEI)
Galilee College Israel with participation of the Dean of Harvard Extension School
11 – 22 January, 2010

Registration to the 23rd Management of Higher Education Institutions Seminar will officially commence on July 1st, 2009.

Special guest lecturers at this seminar will be two key speakers from Harvard Extension School.

One of the central topics to be dealt with at this seminar will be the issue of Globalization and its impact on Higher Education institutes.

“Globalization is challenging universities to rethink their organization and responsibilities so that they can respond creatively to the new world they have helped to bring about. “

Richard C. Atkinson, 17th President of University of California

As globalization sweeps across the world our universities have never been so challenged; International academic mobility has increased 57% since 1999; today 2.9 million students seek an education outside their home country.

As scholars and policy-makers we are therefore constantly challenged to assess the impact of this rapidly growing phenomenon and how it will influence long term planning for our higher education institutes.

The Galilee College HE seminar offers lectures and workshops which are topical and thought provoking. Issues covered include: Impact of Technology on the Future of the University, Competitive Strategies in Higher Education and the Influence of the Economic crises on Higher Education.

You will have the unique opportunity to develop an international network with colleagues from around the world; exchange views and explore together issues that affect higher education management today.

Your accommodation and study centre are located just 15 minutes from Nazareth, study tours across Israel are included in the curriculum and on weekends you will tour the Holy Land's most historical and religious sites.

To learn more about this exclusive opportunity, please contact me directly or visit the seminar's webpage at: www.galilcol.ac.il/page.asp?id=20.

You may also like to check out our new seminar Peace Building and Conflict Resolution which you or your staff may find interesting. <http://www.galilcol.ac.il/page.asp?id=350>
